Kidney stones, gallstones and accretions of similar nature are dissolved and expelled in the form of grains or mucous. Rheumatic pains disappear completely after a few weeks. [The Energy Evolution - Harnessing Free Energy from Nature, The Life-Current in Air and Water]

The fact of the matter, however, is that through these totally perverse procedures and all manner of unnatural activities, everything we are experiencing today that is difficult, disgraceful and degrading of human dignity had inevitably to happen. Deductively thinking logicians have therefore over-looked the causes of the supposed effects, out of which, depending on whether the form of motion is natural or unnatural, the respective ancillary forces that either affirm life or negate it come into being. In this regard the life-denying forces increase, reproduce and advance themselves in exactly the same way as their counterparts, which promote the naturally ordained course of further development through increase and qualitative improvement. This would be impossible, however, were it not for the temperature-forms responsible for expelling what is inferior and for purging, purifying and detoxifying organisms. It is out of these temperature-forms that the decomposing, analysing cavitation current arises, which today's science uses in the widest variety of ways and without exception for a supposed build-up of culture. Clearly the misfortunes we shall have to reap will be all the greater, the more widespread and intensive the activity of a science that makes use of these lower-grade temperature-forms. [4] Excremental or faecal technology: This expression reflects Viktor Schauburger's view that today's technology is founded on the wrongful combustion of waste matter, such as oil and coal. As the energy-deficient physical residues of formerly vital substances, i.e. the expelled by-products of interactions of a purely energetic nature, he regards them as Nature's faecal matter — hence the term 'excremental'. The more strongly the attracting forces become active in the developmental process, the greater the quantity of ennobled magnetolytes (ascended and magnetically supercharged ions) that soar upwards with their adherents and the greater the quantity of less valuable substances expelled by the highest-grade elements which have to solidify under the effect of the counter-influences described earlier. And thus through the proper regulation of these magnetolytic dissociative processes, the increase and qualitative improvement of the aforesaid product of solidification, or growth, can be enhanced at will.
